PREFACE

It is a matter of great pleasure for us to place before the world of scholars, the Critical Edition of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki. This kāṇḍa has been published in 3 Fascicules, the first one was published in 1967, the second in 1969 and the third in March, 1971. We are glad to note that this kāṇḍa is completed according to schedule before March, 31st 1971.

We are thankful to the University Grants Commission for their financial assistance (two-thirds of the expenses) and the Gujarat State Government for their assistance of 20% of the expenses. And we hope that both the U.G.C. and the State Government will continue to assist the M. S. University of Baroda and this Institute till the whole of Uttarakāṇḍa and the Pratīka-Index of all the Kāṇḍas of this Critical Edition are printed and published.

I am especially thankful to Prof. Dr. P. L. Vaidya, the learned Editor of this kāṇḍa, whose versatile scholarship and experience of the Critical Editions of the Mahābhārata, the Harivaṁśa as well as the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of Rāmāyaṇa are well-known to the world of scholars. Prof. Vaidya has been, from the very beginning, our chief friend and guide in this project of the Critical Edition of the Rāmāyaṇa and even at the age of 80 with gradually failing health he had undertaken the task of the Critical Edition of Yuddhakāṇḍa which is now brought to a successful end. Unfortunately, for the last few months he has not been keeping well and hence he has been unable to append his Critical Notes to this kāṇḍa. We postponed the publication of third fascicule for about a month in the hope that Prof. Vaidya's health would improve so as to enable him to write out his Critical Notes.

As and when Prof. Vaidya is able to write the notes, they will be printed and published as an Appendix to our next Volume.

It would be interesting to note the following remarks of Prof. Vaidya (Vide, his Intro. p. XXIX)—"I believe that the original Rāmāyaṇa consisted of three Kāṇḍas only, viz., the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, Araṇyakāṇḍa and Yuddhakāṇḍa. Later the Ayodhyākāṇḍa got split up into Bāla and Ayodhyā, and Araṇyakāṇḍa into Araṇya, Kiṣkindhā and Sundara Kāṇḍas, making a total of six Kāṇḍas with a supplement (षट्काण्डं सोत्तरम्)".

Some verses at the end of Sarga 14 of Bālakāṇḍa, Lahore ed., in North-western recension, are almost repeated at the end of Bālakāṇḍa and the Sargas between Sarga 16 (our Cr. ed. of Bāla-kāṇḍa) and the beginning of Ayodhyā including especially the Viśvāmitra episode could have been added later. (cf. Lahore ed., Bālakāṇḍa, pp. 154 ff. Sarga 14, vv. 20 ff. with Sarga 72, vv. 9-16 p. 488 f.). The evidence of our MSS. Śi D1–3.5.7.9.12.13 of Bālakāṇḍa, referred to above, will demonstrate this. Thus most of the Bāla after Sarga 17 (of Critical Edition) is a later addition.

A Palm-leaf MS. No. L. 652 of Kerala University Library contains text of Yuddha and Uttara kāṇḍas only. The colophon at the end of Yuddhakāṇḍa reads as follows:—

इत्यार्षे श्रीरामायणे आदिकाव्ये श्रीवाल्मीकीये श्रीमद्युद्धकाण्डे रामाभिषेकप्रकरणे राज्याभिषेकमहोत्सवो नाम [शताधिक] एकत्रिंशत्सर्गः। श्रीरामाय नमः। युद्धकाण्डं समाप्तम्। इडालिकुलसंभवेन वरदराजेन वाल्मीकिना सुशोधितं पाठमुद्धृत्य विवेकतिलकं नाम व्याख्यानं कृतवान् तद्व्याख्यानपाठोयम्। रामायणं समाप्तम्।

अक्षरं यत्परिभ्रष्टं मात्राहीनं तु यद्भवेत्।
क्षन्तुमर्हन्ति विद्वांसः कस्य नास्ति व्यतिक्रमः॥

तृणकण्डुलवविष्णुशर्म्मणा लिखितं पुस्तकमिदम्।

At the end of Gorresio's edition of Yuddhakāṇḍa which follows the N. E. recension of the Rāmāyaṇa, it is printed as follows:—

इत्यार्षे रामायणे वाल्मीकीये आदिकाव्ये चतुर्विंशतिसाहस्र्यां संहितायां युद्धकाण्डं समाप्तं॥ रामायणं समाप्तं॥

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

Thus there was a tradition that Rāmāyaṇa ended with Yuddha and that Uttara was a supplement.

It is not necessary here to go into details of this problem since it has been generally agreed that most of the Bāla and Uttarakāṇḍas are later.

I am also thankful to the Vice-Chancellor, M. S. University of Baroda, and the Director, Oriental Institute, Baroda, who are taking keen interest in the progress and completion of this project.

I am thankful to all the members of the staff of the Rāmāyaṇa Department without whose sincere cooperation the work of publication would not have continued so nicely. I am especially thankful to Shri R. J. Patel, Manager, M. S. University of Baroda Press, who has been taking special care and interest in printing of the different Volumes.

INTRODUCTION

THIS first Critical Edition of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa is based on four selected printed editions, thirty-four selected manuscripts in several different scripts, viz., the Śāradā, Newārī, Maithilī, Bengālī, Devanāgarī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam procured from different parts of India and abroad, Kṣemendra's Epitome called the Rāmāyaṇa Mañjarī and several commentaries from the oldest available of Uḍārī Varadarāja. The material available on the Rāmāyaṇa is really very vast, and the organisers and the Editor have to ignore several printed editions for which the reader is referred to Shri N. A. Gore's Bibliography of the Rāmāyaṇa, as well as second rate or dilapidated or damaged manuscripts. All the same, the Editor desires to assure the reader that he has utilized every important work which was useful one way or another for the fixing of the text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. We had to ignore manuscripts in Nandināgarī because they were found not to yield material not found in Telugu, and Assamese and Oriya manuscripts because they also did not differ from Bengālī. The material actually used is detailed below.

A. Printed Editions :

As stated above, there are several printed editions of the whole of Rāmāyaṇa current in different parts of India in different scripts such as Devanāgarī, Bengālī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam. Out of these we have selected the following four, all in Devanāgarī script. They are :

(1) Lahore Edition (L) : Yuddhakāṇḍa edited by Shri Vishvabandhu Shastri, Lahore, 1944, D.A.V. College Sanskrit Series, No. 19.

(2) Gaspare Gorresio (G) : The Rāmāyaṇa, Vol. V, Yuddhakāṇḍa, Paris, 1850.

(3) Shrīmad Vālmīki Rāmāyaṇa (according to Southern readings), Vol. II containing Sundara, Yuddha and Uttara Kāṇḍas, edited by Pandit T. R. Krishnacharya, and published by Madhva Vilasa Book Depot, Kumbakonam, second edition, 1930. (K)

(4) Vālmīki Rāmāyaṇa (with the three commentaries, Tilaka, Śiromaṇi and Bhūṣaṇa), Vol. VI, Yuddhakāṇḍa, edited by Shastri Shrinivas Katti Mudholkar, published by the Gujarati Printing Press, Bombay, 1919. (B)

B. Manuscripts :

Out of a very large number of manuscripts of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa, we have selected the following 34 manuscripts. These MSS. are written, as in the case of the first five Kāṇḍas, in the principal scripts of India, namely, Śāradā, Newārī, Maithilī, Bengālī, Devanāgarī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam. We have ignored MSS. in Assamese, Oriya and Nandināgarī, because no independent and good MSS. in these scripts were available to us. Of the 34 MSS. used for the Yuddhakāṇḍa 14 MSS. are common to Kāṇḍas 1-6, 4 ($D_{4.8}$ T_3 M_3) are common to Kāṇḍas 4,5 and 6; while 2 (V_1 D_3) are common to Kāṇḍas 3 to 6; two MSS. (B_3 M_2) are common to Kāṇḍas 5 and 6; two ($D_{10.12}$) are common to 1, 4-6; and one (D_2) is common to Kāṇḍas 1, 3-6; one MS. (D_5) is common to the Kāṇḍas 3, 4 and 6; while one (D_7) is common to Kāṇḍas 3, 5 and 6. Seven new MSS. ($Ś_2$ $V_{2.3}$ $B_{2.4}$ D_{13} M_6) are utilized for this Kāṇḍa. We have thus selected MSS. which may be said to be fairly representative of different periods and they range from A.D. 1020 to A.D. 1841.

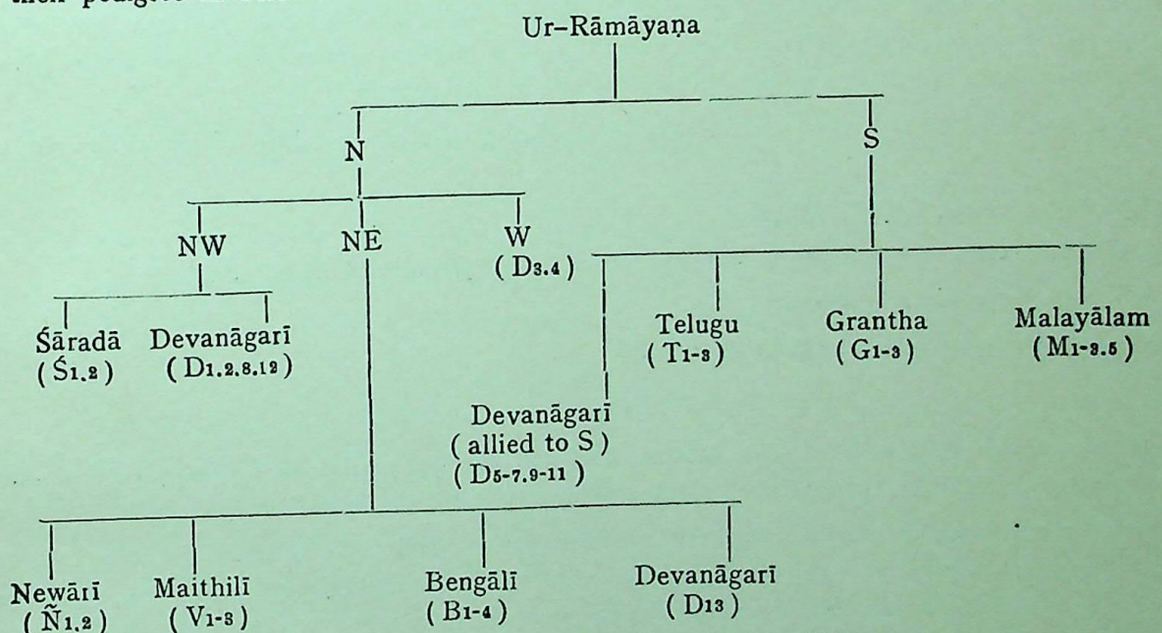
All the MSS. utilized for this Kāṇḍa clearly fall into two main recensions, Northern and Southern, each of which is further divided into several versions. The MSS. used can thus be classified according to their pedigree as below:—



Detailed Description of the MSS.

Ś1

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 14061. Undated. The MS. was purchased for the Institute by Dr. S. N. Sharma of Shrinagar. Thick unglazed paper, size 12½" × 7", Śāradā script.

The MS. is complete in seven Kāṇḍas, total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa being 91. Folio nos. 70-76 (i.e., the portion from 6.93.13 to 6.102.5c of our Critical Text) are missing. The folio has 18 lines.

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

to a page and about 46 to 53 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas and stanzas are not numbered. Sargas 1 to 15 of our Critical Text of Yuddha appear at the end of Sundarakāṇḍa as its part. A single daṇḍa demarcates both the halves of the stanza. Colophons, bearing significant Sarga names, are generally daubed over with red chalk or yellow powder. Very few marginal notes. Corrections are few, and they are pr. m. Stanzas are at times omitted. Transpositions of stanzas are occasionally noticed. The MS. is fairly old. Writing fairly legible and correct. Parasavarṇa instead of anusvāra is generally used. No pṛṣṭhamātrās are noticed. The MS. seems to have been written by two scribes. Though the Kāṇḍa is not dated, it seems to be a late exemplar.

The MS. represents the NW version.

The following star -passages are found exclusively in this MS., viz., 3655, 3661 and 3663 (3).

Ś₂

New Delhi, in private possession of Dr. Lokesh Chandra, Director, International Academy of Indian Culture. Unnumbered. Dated Saṁvat 58 (A.D. 1885). Written on paper, size 13.8" × 7.2". Śāradā script.

The MS. is complete in seven Kāṇḍas. As it was obtained very recently, the MS. has been utilized from Sarga 11 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa. The total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa is 125. The folio has 15 lines to a page and about 50 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are not numbered, while Sargas are numbered. The total number of Sargas of Yuddhakāṇḍa is 112. Sargas 1-15 of our Critical Text are relegated, as in Ś1, to Sundara in this MS. There is no device used to mark the Ślokārdha or even a Śloka. Colophons are coloured red and give suitable Sarga names. No marginalia noticed. Corrections are very few and are found pr. m. Omissions of stanzas are noticed in some places. A number of stanzas are transposed. The MS. is old, some folios being moth-eaten. Hand-writing is nice, with few errors. The scribe writes स्म as :म, for instance, पित्रे स्म as पित्रे :म. The rules of Saṁdhi are generally observed. No pṛṣṭhamātrās are noticed. The whole MS. is written by a single hand, only the post-colophon entry, giving the genealogy of the scribe given at the end of Uttarakāṇḍa appears to have been written by another person.

The post-colophon entry at the end Uttarakāṇḍa seems to give the date of the entire MS. as follows:

ॐ श्रीशुभसंवत् । ५८ श्रा. सुदि नवम्यां बुधे ॥

This probably refers to the Saptarṣi Saṁvat 58 which is equivalent to A.D. 1885.

The MS. represents the NW version.

No exclusive star-passages are found in this MS.

Ñ₁

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No 14156. Microfilm of MS. No. 934 of the Bir Library, Kathmandu, Nepal. Dated Saṁvat 1076 (A.D. 1020). Palm-leaf, size 21½" × 2". Newārī script.

The codex contains all the seven Kāṇḍas of the Rāmāyaṇa. Folios 506 to 696 cover the subject-matter of Yuddhakāṇḍa. Sargas 1-15 of the Critical Text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa are relegated, as in Ś1.2, to Sundarakāṇḍa. Colophons give suitable names for the sargas. प्लु in प्लवंगम is invariably written as प्र. For details, vide Bālakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XV, as well as Sundarakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XII. No date is recorded at the close of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, but the post-colophon entry at the end of Kiṣkindhā mentions Saṁvat 1076 (i.e. A.D. 1020) as its date.

The MS. represents the NE version.

The exclusive star-passages found in this MS. are: 3, 280 (A), 813, 1069, 1072, 1614, 1639, 1878, 1940 (A), and 3097 (10).

Ñ₂

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 14157. Microfilm of MS. No. 905 of the Bir Library, Kathmandu, Nepal. Dated Newārī Saṁvat 795 (i. e., A.D. 1675). Written on thick country paper, size 20½″×5″. Newārī script.

The codex contains all the seven Kāṇḍas of the work. 158 folios of the MS. cover the portion of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. The Yuddhakāṇḍa has 118 Sargas in this MS. Sargas 1-15 of the Critical Text of Yuddha appear at the end of the Sundarakāṇḍa as its part. For details, vide Bālakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XV.

The MS. represents the NE version.

The exclusive star-passages found in this MS. are : 331, 366 (A), 465, 698, 757, 901, 1107, 1159, 1249, 1481(B), 1615, 1636, 1640, 1709 and 1863 (15).

V₁

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 4 (Addenda). Microfilm of a Maithilī MS. from the University Library, Patna. Dated Śaka 1670 (A.D. 1748). Maithilī script.

The codex has preserved all the seven Kāṇḍas in 535 folios and has been utilized for the Critical Edition of Araṇya, Kiṣkindhā and Sundarakāṇḍas. The total number of folios for the Yuddhakāṇḍa is 122. Sargas 1-15 of the Critical Text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa form, as in NW version, concluding part of the Sundarakāṇḍa. For details, vide Araṇyakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XIII.

The MS. represents the NE version.

Only two star-passages are exclusive to this MS., viz., 68 and 771(A).

V₂

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 57 (Addenda). Microfilm of MSS. Nos. 2, 3 and 1 of the University Library, Patna. Dated Śaka 1763 (A.D. 1841). Maithilī script.

This MS. has only three Kāṇḍas, viz., Kiṣkindhākāṇḍa, Yuddhakāṇḍa, and Uttarakāṇḍa. It has 8 to 11 lines to a page and 31 to 34 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are generally numbered. Sargas are not regularly numbered. Sargas 1-15 of the Critical Text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa are not found as the exemplar has no Sundarakāṇḍa with it. Naturally, the MS. begins with Sarga 16 of Yuddhakāṇḍa. Colophons note significant Sarga names. Single and double daṇḍas indicate the two halves of a stanza. Omissions of stanzas are occasionally noticed. Writing not very readable.

The MS. represents the NE version.

There are only three star-passages exclusive to this MS., viz., 677, 955 and 1241.

V₃

Darbhanga, Mithila Institute of Research in Sanskrit Learning, No. 807. Undated. Written on palm-leaves in ink. Size 15¼″ × 2″. Maithilī script.

This MS. contains only the present Kāṇḍa. It has 244 folios. Folio nos. 148–150 are missing. The folio has 5 lines to a page and 60 to 80 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas are not regularly numbered. Sargas 1–15 of the Critical Text of the Kāṇḍa are not found in this MS. The variants recorded as of V₃ for Sargas 1–15 are from the MS. V₂ of Sundarakāṇḍa which incorporates these 15 Sargas as its part. Stanzas are not numbered. Single daṇḍa marks the Śloka-endings. Colophons give suitable Sarga names. Many marginalia are noticed. Corrections are very few and are made in ink pr. m. Additions common to the Northern recension are found in this MS. also. Omissions of stanzas (usually haplographical) are occasionally noticed. The MS. seems to be very old. It is damaged in many places because the folios are moth-eaten. Writing is fairly legible and generally devoid of errors. There are occasional lapses such as स्त for स्थ, or ष्ट; त्व for तु, स्व for सु, म्व for मु are due to similarity of these letters in Maithilī script. The letters न, ल and ण are similar. The use of pṛṣṭha-mātrās is noticed occasionally. Saṁdhi rules are generally observed. The MS. is written by a single hand.

It represents the NE version.

Only three star-passages are found exclusive to this MS. They are : 713, 1991 and 3308.

B1

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 14126. Photo copy in situ of MS. No. 348 of the Bibliothèque nationale, Paris. Dated Śaka 1593 (A.D. 1671). This MS. was utilized by Dr. Gorresio for his edition, and was designated G by him. Palm-leaves, Bengālī script.

This MS., utilized for the Critical Edition of the previous five Kāṇḍas, is complete and contains all the seven Kāṇḍas. Folios 1–181 contain the portion of Yuddhakāṇḍa. Folio 180 is blank. Two extra folios, one numbered 134 and the other having no number, belonging to a MS. of the Mahābhārata, are appended at the end of Yuddhakāṇḍa. The folio has seven lines to a page and 65–70 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are not numbered. Sargas are numbered, but the numbering is erroneous. Sargas 1–12 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa are incorporated at the end of Sundarakāṇḍa as its integral part. A single daṇḍa demarcates both the halves of the stanza. Colophons give significant Sarga names. A few marginalia and corrections, all pr. m., are noticed. Stanzas are sometimes omitted. Sargas 14 and 15 of the Critical Text are omitted. Transpositions of stanzas and lines are also noticed in some places. Hand-writing is nice and devoid of errors. Rules of Saṁdhi are usually observed and pṛṣṭhamātrās are commonly used. Parasavarṇa is generally used. The Yuddhakāṇḍa is copied by a single scribe. The post-colophon entry at the end of the present Kāṇḍa, gives its date as also the scribe's name, as follows :—

श्रीनारायणशर्मणो लिपिरेषा पुस्तकं च श्रीनारायणस्य । शुभमस्तु । शकाब्दाः । शके वह्निग्रहे बाणे चन्द्रे च परिप्लुविते । यत्नेन लिखितो यस्तु श्रीनारायणशर्मणा ।

The MS. represents the NE version.

The following star-passages are found exclusively in this MS. : 128, 175(B), 381, 592, 641, 823, 1261, 1676 and 1998 (9).

Calcutta, Bangīya Sāhitya Pariṣad, No. 1439 (Ka). Dated Śaka 1720 (A.D. 1798). Written on paper, size 18″×3.9″. Bengālī script.

This MS. contains only the present Kāṇḍa and has 221 folios. Each folio has 7 lines to a page and approximately 77 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas are numbered occasionally. Sargas 1–15 of the Critical Text are not found in this MS., and the MS. begins with Sarga 16 of our text. The variants recorded as of B2 for Sargas 1–15 are from the MS. designated as B3 of Sundarakāṇḍa with which these 15 Sargas are incorporated. Stanzas are unnumbered. A single daṇḍa separates both the halves of the stanzas. Colophons bear appropriate Sarga names. There are very few marginal notes, additions and corrections, all in the hand of the same scribe. Transposition and omissions of stanzas are occasionally noticed. The MS. is well-preserved. Writing is fairly legible. Pṛṣṭhamātrās are used and Saṁdhi rules are observed. The whole Kāṇḍa is copied by a single scribe. The post-colophon entry at the close of the MS. gives the date as well as the name of the scribe as follows :

शकाब्दाः १७२० श्रीव्रजकिशोरदेवशर्मणो लिपिरियं । श्रीदेवनाथसिंहस्य ग्रंथमिदम् ॥

The MS. represents the NE version.

The star-passages exclusive to this MS. are : 330(A), 454, 934, 1002, 1090, 1907, 3071 (A), 3209, 3645 and 3647 (10).

B₃

Calcutta, Asiatic Society of Bengal, No. G 393. Undated. Written on paper, size 19″ × 5½″. Bengālī script.

This MS. contains only three Kāṇḍas, viz., Sundarakāṇḍa, Yuddhakāṇḍa and Uttarakāṇḍa and has been utilized for the Critical Edition of Sundarakāṇḍa. It has 177 folios for the Yuddhakāṇḍa. Folio 43 is missing. Each folio has 11 to 13 lines to a page and 50 to 55 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas are numbered, while stanzas are not. The total number of Sargas for the Yuddhakāṇḍa is 109. Sargas 1–15 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa are relegated to Sundara as its constituent part. Single and double daṇḍas indicate the two halves of a stanza. Colophons, which bear suitable Sarga names, are written in red ink. Many marginal notes are found. Corrections are made in black and red ink. Corrections are few in number, usually pr. m., but occasionally sec. m. as well. Omissions of stanzas are at times noticed. Instances of transpositions of stanzas and lines are very few. The MS. is very old. Hand-writing is good, legible and generally correct. Pṛṣṭhamātrās are used and rules of Saṁdhi are generally followed. The MS. is written by a single scribe. No date is mentioned at the close of this Kāṇḍa or anywhere else. At the end of the present Kāṇḍa, the scribe's name is given as Rāmadhanadeva Śarmā.

The MS. represents the NE version.

The MS. has a pretty large number of exclusive star-passages. They are : 374, 389, 412 (D), 433, 434(A), 638, 711(A), 730, 859, 897, 1003, 1032, 1056, 1092, 1108, 1146, 1201(A), 1231(A), 1238, 1367, 1377, 1443(A), 1457, 1476, 1492, 1527, 1577, 1613, 1698, 1731, 1782, 1883, 1904, 2002, 2070(A), 2083, 2085(B), 2088(A), 2093, 3055, 3061, 3073, 3150, 3441, 3475(A), 3483, 3561, 3563, 3570, 3581(A) and 3674 (51). In addition, there are two Appendix I passages, viz., Nos. 29 and 76 (2*) exclusive to this MS.

B₄

Calcutta, Bangīya Sāhitya Pariṣad, No. 1168. Undated. Written on paper, size 20″ × 5″. Bengālī script.

The MS. contains only the Yuddhakāṇḍa. It has 179 folios, folio no. 171 being duplicated. Each folio has 8 lines to a page and about 60 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas are not regularly numbered. Sargas 1–15 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa are not found in this MS.; it begins with Sarga 16 of the Critical Text. The variants recorded as of B₄ for Sargas 1–15 are taken from the MS. B₄ used for the Sundarakāṇḍa which includes these 15 Sargas. Stanzas are not numbered. Single and double daṇḍas are used respectively to demarcate the first and the second half of the stanza. Colophons record suitable Sarga names. Very few marginal notes or corrections are noticed. A few transpositions of stanzas or lines are noticed. The MS. is in good condition, but the paper is worn out. Hand-writing is good and readable, and is generally correct. Parasavarṇa is generally used. Pṛṣṭhamātrās are also noticed. Saṁdhi rules are usually observed. The Kāṇḍa is copied by a single scribe. There is no mention of the date or of the scribe.

The MS. represents the NE version.

Only seven star-passages are found exclusively in the MS. They are: 54, 411(A), 537, 631, 996, 3375 and 3513 (7).

D₁

Poona, Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, No. 825 of 1875-76. Dated Saṁvat 1829 (A.D. 1773). Written on paper, size 11½″ × 4½″. Devanāgarī script.

The codex, utilized for the previous five Kāṇḍas, contains all the seven Kāṇḍas. The total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa comes to 313. Each folio has 10 lines to a page and about 25 letters to a line. Margins are ruled. The total number of Sargas in the Yuddhakāṇḍa is 113, and they are numbered, while stanzas are not. In this codex, the Yuddhakāṇḍa commences from Sarga 16 of the Critical Text. But as it also contains Sundarakāṇḍa, and has at its end, Sargas 1-31 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa, we have, therefore, designated that portion of the Sundarakāṇḍa MS. with the symbol D_1 for Sargas 1-15 and the symbol D_0 for Sargas 16-31 of Yuddhakāṇḍa. The duplicated Sargas 16-31 are designated with the symbol D_1. Colophons bearing suitable Sarga names are daubed over with red chalk. No distinctive signs such as daṇḍas are used to indicate the endings of the halves or the stanza. No marginalia. Corrections are few and are pr. m. Omissions of stanzas as well as transpositions are noticed in a few places. Condition of the MS. good, and writing legible. The Kāṇḍa is copied by a single scribe. For details regarding date and scribe, vide Bālakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XX.

The MS. represents the NW version.

The following star-passages are exclusive to D_0: 575, 589, 593 and 669 (4); while the star-passages exclusive to D_1 are : 451, 452, 647, 650, 662, 665, 1004, 1381, 1414, 1725 (A), 1760, 3027, 3111, 3172, 3174, and 3177 (16).

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 12864. Dated Śaka 1581 (A.D. 1659). Written on paper, size $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$. Devanāgarī script.

The MS. contains all the seven Kāṇḍas and has been utilized for the Critical Edition of Bāla, Araṇya, Kiṣkindhā and Sundarakāṇḍa. Folios 155 to 331 comprise Yuddhakāṇḍa. Sargas 1 to 5 of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Critical Edition are relegated to Sundarakāṇḍa in this MS. Corrections are generally pr. m., but there are a few which seem to be sec. m. They are made usually with yellow pigment. Stanzas are found omitted sometimes. The MS. is dilapidated in condition. ज and ख are sometimes substituted for य and ष respectively. The whole Kāṇḍa is in the hand of a single scribe. For details, vide Araṇyakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XVII.

The MS. represents the NW version.

The star-passages exclusive to this MS. are : 553, 666, 916, 922, 1302, 1647, 1653, 1658, 3014, 3397, 3628 and 3693 (12).

Ujjain, Scindia Oriental Institute, No. 5600. Dated Saṁvat 1787 (A.D. 1731). Written on paper, size $12'' \times 5\frac{3}{4}''$. Devanāgarī script.

The codex is complete in seven Kāṇḍas and has been utilized for the Critical Edition of Araṇya, Kiṣkindhā and Sundara. The total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa is 159. The folio has 15 lines to a page and about 40 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas are numbered, while stanzas are not. The total number of Sargas of Yuddhakāṇḍa is 114. Sargas 1-15 of our Critical Text are found at the end of the Sundarakāṇḍa. Both the halves of stanzas are marked by double daṇḍas. Colophons which record significant Sarga names are daubed over with red colour. A few marginalia are found. Corrections are few and are mostly pr. m. Stanzas are sometimes omitted and transpositions of stanzas are occasionally noticed. Sargas 85 and 86 of our Critical Text are consecutively repeated. The condition of the MS. is old. Writing is good with some corrections. Rules of Saṁdhi are observed. The entire Kāṇḍa is written by a single hand. At the end of Yuddhakāṇḍa, the scribe gives the date and place as follows :—

युद्धकांड समाप्तोयं। संवत् १७८७। अब्धींदुऋषिवसुसंख्यागतेब्दे(?) भाद्रपदचतुर्दश्यां सोमवासरे। लिखितभावासनगर-शुभस्थाने।

The MS. represents the W version.

This MS. has a pretty large number of exclusive star-passages, viz., 5, 12, 15, 21, 24, 26, 27, 188, 228, 432, 436, 612, 645, 891(A), 1113, 1150, 1179, 1371, 1397, 1637, 1643, 1855, 1948, 2035 (A), 2044, 2061, 3077, 3152, 3161, 3303, 3319, 3431, 3582, 3595, 3613, 3615, 3682, 3683 and 3687 (39). App. I (No. 34) also is found exclusively in this MS.

Jodhpur, Palace Library, Bandha No. 5. Dated Saṁvat 1788 (A.D. 1732). Written on paper, size 15″×6½″. Devanāgarī script.

This MS. has preserved all the seven Kāṇḍas and has been utilized for the Critical Edition of Kiṣkindhā and Sundara. The total number of folios for the Yuddhakāṇḍa is 153. The folio has 12 lines to a page and about 43 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are numbered, while Sargas are not. Sargas 1–31 of our Critical Text of Yuddha appear at the end of Sundara as an integral part of that Kāṇḍa. In this MS., Yuddhakāṇḍa begins from Sarga 32. Both the halves of stanzas are marked by double daṇḍas. Red ink is used for daṇḍas. Colophons give suitable names for the Sargas. Corrections are mostly made pr. m. Very few marginalia. Stanzas are omitted in many places. Transpositions of stanzas are noticed occasionally. Repetitions of stanzas also occur occasionally. The MS. is rather old though the writing is clear, with occasional errors. Saṁdhi rules are observed generally. The whole MS. is copied by one person. The post-colophon entry at the end of Yuddha gives the date of the MS. as under:—

Ujjain, Scindia Oriental Institute No. 1357. Dated Śaka 1689 (A.D. 1767). Written on old paper, size 14½″×7″. Devanāgarī script.

The codex contains all the Kāṇḍas except Bāla and Sundara. It has been utilized for our Critical Edition of Araṇya and Kiṣkindhā. The total number of folios for Yuddha is 240. Folios 84, 85, 135, 235 and 236 are missing. Folios 7 and 9 are in duplicate. The first and the last folios are blank on one side. Each folio has 10 lines to a page and about 41 letters to a line. Margins are ruled in red ink. Sargas are numbered. The total number of Sargas for Yuddha is 131. Stanzas bear no numbers, but the total number of stanzas is stated to be 7000 for the Yuddha. Double daṇḍas mark both the halves of the stanza. Red ink is used for daṇḍas and colophons. Only in Sarga 116 of our Critical Edition, we find mention of Sarga name in the colophon. Corrections are few; they are made by yellow pigment as well as by ink, and are made by the copyist himself. Marginalia are rare. Omissions of stanzas are noticed, while in a few instances stanzas are repeated. Transpositions of lines and stanzas are noticeable. The MS. is old and some folios are broken. Writing is neat and clear. In several places the anusvāras are dropped. Saṁdhi rules are generally followed, but no avagraha is used. The MS. is complete for Yuddha and is written by a single person. The date of the present Kāṇḍa is mentioned at the end of the Kāṇḍa in the following way:—

श्रीशके १६८९। सर्वजित्संवत्सरे मधुशुक्लत्रितीयायां समाप्तोयं ग्रंथः। श्रीरामो जयति। ग्रंथसंख्या ७००० ॥

The MS. represents the S version.

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

This MS. contains all the seven Kāṇḍas, written probably by different scribes at different periods. The MS. is utilized for the Critical Edition of all the earlier Kāṇḍas. It has 135 folios for the Yuddhakāṇḍa. The folio has 13 lines to a page and about 67 letters to a line. Margins are ruled. Only the Sargas are numbered, while the stanzas are not. The total number of Sargas of Yuddha is 115. Sargas 1–15 of our Critical Text are relegated to the Sundarakāṇḍa as its integral part. The Śloka-endings are marked by single daṇḍas in red ink only up to Critical Sarga 63 (i.e. Sarga 53 of the MS.). Colophons give significant Sarga names only up to Sarga 63 of the Critical Edition; thereafter only Sarga numbers are mentioned. Colophons are daubed over with red chalk. Very few marginalia and corrections. All corrections are pr. m. Stanzas are omitted many times, sometimes due to haplography. Stanzas and lines are occasionally transposed. Condition old. Writing is fairly legible. The letters श्रा and त्रा are often confounded. Similarly, य is used for ज and vice versa. ष is at times written for ख; e.g. पर्व for खर्व. Anusvāra is generally used for the final म्. Saṁdhi rules are usually observed. The present Kāṇḍa is written by two scribes. The portion up to 6.64.12^{a} of our Critical Text is copied by one scribe, while the remaining portion up to the end of the Kāṇḍa is copied by a different scribe. The Kāṇḍa is complete. It is stated at the end that Yuddhakāṇḍa was completed in Saṁvat 1742 (i.e. A.D. 1686).

The MS. follows the NE version in the first 15 Sargas of the Critical Text, and thereafter generally follows the S recension.

It is interesting to note that while there are no exclusive star-passages in M2 up to the 87.11 of the Critical Text, there are as many as 80 such passages in the next 30 Sargas of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. The question of sudden exuberance of the poetic mind of the scribe, or of the change of his exemplar may be the reason for it, but it cannot be treated exhaustively here.

Chundampatta (via Pattambi), South Malbar, in private possession (of C. Chitrabhanu Nambudiri). Unnumbered and undated. Written on palm-leaves, size $27\frac{1}{2}'' \times 2''$. Malayālam script.

The MS. is complete in seven Kāṇḍas and has been utilized previously for the Critical Edition of Kiṣkindhā and Sundara. Folios 149 to 209 comprise the subject-matter of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. The folio has 12 to 13 lines to a page and 135 to 145 letters to a line. Sargas are numbered in words and the total number of Sargas of the Yuddhakāṇḍa amounts to 131. The entirs MS. is from the pen of a single scribe. For details, vide Sundarakāṇḍa, Introduction, p. XXII. The MS. is undated; however, it seems to belong to a relatively modern period.

The MS. represents the S recension.

The following star-passages are found exclusively in this MS., viz., 1, 123, 131(A), 1219, 3321 and 3698 (6).

M4

The Rāmāyaṇa Department expected one more MS. from South Malbar, and planned to designate it as M4. However, the MS. in question could not be procured.

M5

Trivandram, University of Kerala Manuscripts Library, No. 13336. Undated. Written on palm-leaves, size $19'' \times 2''$. Malayālam script.

The codex contains Bāla, Ayodhyā, Kiṣkindhā, Yuddha and Uttara Kāṇḍas only. Folios 195 to 316 comprise the subject-matter of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. The folio has 12 to 13 lines to a page and about 80 to 82 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are not numbered, but Sargas are numbered in words. The total number of Sargas of Yuddha is 131. Daṇḍas are not noticed; the writing is continuous. No marginalia. Corrections are very few and are inf. lin. No additions or omission. Transpositions of stanzas and lines are noticed. The MS. is in good condition. Writing is neat and clear and generally correct. Scribal mistakes are noticed here and there. The script is modern and all the scribal peculiarities of the Southern MSS. are noticed in this MS. also. Rules of Saṁdhi are generally followed. The codex is written in one hand and is complete for Yuddhakāṇḍa. Though the MS. is undated, it appears to be nearly one hundred years old.

The MS. represents the S recension.

The star-passages exclusive to this MS. are: 193, 416(A), 540, 1007, 1333, 1372, 1404, 3012, 3017, 3528, 3543, 3553, 3558 and 3635 (14).

TESTIMONIA:

(A) The Commentaries:

There are a number of commentaries available on the text of the Rāmāyaṇa, and its various recensions and versions. The number of commentaries on the text of S recension is large and range from Uḍāri Varadarāja (earlier than A.D. 1250), Rāmānuja (14th century), Maheśvaratīrtha (A.D. 1550), Govindarāja (A.D. 1600), Katakayogīndra (A.D. 1650), and Nāgeśa Bhaṭṭa (A.D. 1700).

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

All these commentaries on S recension have been fully used and variant readings as well as pāṭhāntaras recorded in them are noted in our Critical Apparatus. All these six commentators hail from South India and comment on the text of Southern recension of the Rāmāyaṇa. The Bengali commentator (date ?) Lokanātha Cakravartī has, however, commented upon the Bengālī version of the Rāmāyaṇa. He very often refers to Vimalabodha and Sarvajña-Nārāyaṇa (both between A.D. 1100 and 1300) as the old commentators of both the Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata, and quotes from their commentaries on the Rāmāyaṇa. These commentaries, however, are not yet traced anywhere.

(B) Epitomes :

Kṣemendra, the Kaśmirian poet of circa A.D. 1046 composed, among other works, an epitome of Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa in about 6200 stanzas. Of these, some 1400 stanzas summarise the portion of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of Vālmīki's work, as given in our Critical Text. It is clear that Kṣemendra had before him the NW version of the Rāmāyaṇa as can be proved from a lack of reference to the Ādityahṛdayastotra which, thus, constitutes a feature of the S recension. The main episodes of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, all figure in Kṣemendra's Epitome. The Editor of the Yuddhakāṇḍa has utilized this Epitome to corroborate the correspondence of incidents only and not for the wording of the Critical Text.

Among other items under the head of Testimonia, we may mention the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata (Mbh. 3. 258-275), which, in my opinion, is the oldest and ungarbed version of the Rāma episode, as well as other works of bardic literature such as the Viṣṇu, Agni and Padma Purāṇas.

It will be seen from the above description of the MSS., commentaries and Epitomes that I have ransacked and selected almost every available MS. which, I thought, would help me to constitute a Critical Text. Almost each and every MS. used has some special feature of its own, and all of them, taken together, go to make up the Ur-text, as far as the available stock of MSS. can take us back. The Critical Apparatus may appear somewhat loaded as a result of my selection of MSS., but I think it was necessary in the interest of scholarship.

Recensions and Versions :

The above material roughly falls into two major groups of recensions, viz., Northern and Southern. Some MSS., however, particularly of the Devanāgarī group, are divided among themselves, some sharing characteristics of Northern recension and others of Southern recension. The use of N and S, thus, in the case of these MSS. is not quite accurate, but the Editor found himself helpless in classifying them into a definite recension. Similarly, a Malayālam MS., M_2, was found to share characteristic of N recension, in addition to its own specialities. MSS. of this type, may rather be designated as mixed versions which may have their originals contaminated.

The Northern group of MSS. includes those in Śāradā, Newārī or Nepālī, Bengālī and Devanāgarī scripts. The Southern group contains MSS. in Devanāgarī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam scripts–M_2 belongs to a special group. It is a mixed version sharing the characteristics of Newārī and Bengālī on the one hand and of Telugu and Grantha versions on the other. Over and above these traits, this MS. has 80 star-passages peculiar or exclusive to itself. The pedigree of MSS. on page III makes the classification into recensions and versions quite clear.

Text-constitution :

Although the principles of text-constitution of the Rāmāyaṇa have been indicated in the introductions to all the previous Kāṇḍas, I should like to restate them here for ready reference. The main principle on which the constitution of our Critical Text is based, is that there should be a full agreement in substance between all recensions and versions. Whatever extra matter is noticed in MSS. is not considered to be authentic or belonging to the oldest core of the text. This principle has resulted in giving in our edition a very large number of star-passages totalling 3711 with 7143 lines. In other words, while our Critical Text consists of 4435 units of stanzas (a few three-lined and fewer still one-lined), the number of star-passages for this text is 3711 with 7143 lines, out of which 769 are substitute passages. It means that in a Critical Text of 4435 stanzas of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, as many as 2942 passages are inserted by a generation of bards during the text-transmission through centuries. Besides, there are 76 longer passages relegated to App. I containing 7310 lines. Further, individual MSS. have star-passages which are exclusive to them. The number of such exclusive star-passages is 483, there being only 4 MSS., viz., Ś$_2$ D$_{10}$ D$_{11}$ and D$_{12}$ which do not contain a single exclusive star-passage. On the contrary, D$_{13}$ has 93 passages and M$_2$ 80. I have given the above details just to show how difficult the task of the editor was in fixing his Critical Text of the Kāṇḍa.

The Starting Point of Yuddhakāṇḍa :

We have adopted the starting point of the Yuddhakāṇḍa as in Southern recension. The first 15 Sargas in the Critical Edition are found as a concluding part of the Sundarakāṇḍa in the Northern recension. In fact, the division of MSS. into N and S recensions of Yuddhakāṇḍa is determined on the ground whether the first 15 Sargas of our Critical Text figure in Sundara or Yuddha Kāṇḍas. Considering the nature of these 15 Sargas, it may be stated that they belong to a topic dealing with the preparation of waging war by Rāma with Rāvaṇa. To borrow the analogy of the parvan division of the Mahābhārata, these 15 Sargas correspond to the Udyogaparvan of that Epic. If the reader cares to examine the Critical Apparatus of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, particularly the records under colophons, he will be surprised to find that that particular Sarga, according to that MS., belonged to Udyoga as against Laṅkākāṇḍa or Yuddhakāṇḍa. Now, Udyoga or preparation for a war-fare can be more appropriately considered as a part of Yuddhakāṇḍa rather than that of Sundarakāṇḍa, which, in my opinion, is a part of Araṇyakāṇḍa. For, I believe that the original Rāmāyaṇa consisted of three Kāṇḍas only, viz , the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, Araṇyakāṇḍa and Yuddhakāṇḍa. Later the Ayodhyākāṇḍa got split up into Bāla and Ayodhyā, and Araṇyakāṇḍa into Araṇya, Kiṣkindhā and Sundara Kāṇḍas, making a total of six Kāṇḍas with a supplement (षट्काण्डं सोत्तरम्). So, originally these 15 Sargas must have belonged to Yuddhakāṇḍa. It may be noted here that B$_1$ of N recension begins Yuddhakāṇḍa with Sarga 13 and D$_2$ with Sarga 6 of the Critical text, showing a sort of wavering in the mind of copyists of these MSS.

Bardic Poetry and Its Characteristics* :

It is my firm belief that the Rāmāyaṇa, the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas form a class of literature by themselves, and should be styled as Bardic literature. The main characteristic of this literature is that originally it consisted of small songs, ballads and even stray verses called Gāthā nārāśaṁsī, and continued to be sung by traditional bards and transmitted by them to succeeding generation by oral tradition. These songs or ballads later developed into Epics, Purāṇas and early Kāvyas. Further its contents had a very fluid wording, emphasis being laid on contents rather than on expression or words. These expressions or words were capable of being substituted by different expressions provided the meaning remained the same. Further, these original songs were composed in the form of a verse which also was equally fluid and simple to compose and remember. There is a very large number of standard verse-fillers with which the bard is to equip himself. These songs or ballads were also capable of being expanded or even abridged according to the interest the audience shows in the bard's recitation. The extent of an episode becomes shorter or longer on account of these circumstances, and both shorter and longer versions get recorded at the stage of their being reduced to writing. Usually that version is reduced to writing which is current in the family tradition of a particular bard of that particular region.

It is now an admitted fact that both the Epics of India, the Mahābhārata and the Rāmāyaṇa, were in early ages transmitted by oral tradition. Vyāsa is said to have composed the Mahābhārata and narrated or taught it to his five pupils, who, each one of them, had a separate Saṁhitā of his own (संहितास्तैः पृथक्त्वेन भारतस्य प्रकल्पिताः). Of these five Saṁhitās of the Mahābhārata, we possess the full text of Vaiśaṁpāyana's Saṁhitā only transmitted through Lomaharṣaṇa sūta and his disciples like Śaunaka. If we consider the volume of variations which is in the Saṁhitā of a single text-tradition of Vaiśaṁpāyana alone, we will simply stagger at the idea of variations which might have gathered round if the Saṁhitās of all the five pupils of Vyāsa had come to our hand, and perplexities and problems of textual criticism created for the critical editor of the Mahābhārata, keeping all along in mind the fact that the Mahābhārata is styled as Itihāsa while the Rāmāyaṇa is styled as an epic poem.

The case of text-transmission of the Rāmāyaṇa as an epic poem is not much different, though not of the same dimension. Like the sage Vyāsa for the Mahābhārata, we have the sage Vālmīki for the Rāmāyaṇa as its author. He had only two disciples Lava and Kuśa whom he taught the poem. It is said that they first sang it in the court of Rāma. It must then have been committed to memory by several bards and sung to people in regions far and wide. In the course of this propagation of the Rāma-kathā or Rāmāyaṇa, the bards must have added and even altered the story in a number of ways in the direction of its wording or even contents. These recitations of bards got localised, and when they were reduced to writing, they assumed the form of recensions and versions current in that particular locality. In the case of the Rāmāyaṇa there are found three or four recensions, viz., North-Western, North-Eastern, Central or Western and Southern, each recension being further divided into several versions pure and mixed. In the case of the Mahābhārata there were only two recensions N and S, of which N was found to be more authentic while S was found to contain later elements. It was, therefore, easy for the editors of the Mahābhārata to accept N text as the principal text and S as secondary text. But in the case of the Rāmāyaṇa, the above method could not be found workable as there were three or even four recensions available. The late Professor G. H. BHATT, the Editor of the Bālakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa, was forced to abandon the method adopted for the Critical Edition of the Mahābhārata, and evolve a new method to be used for the Critical Edition for the Rāmāyaṇa. He, therefore, had to decide which of the three or four recensions, on the whole, seemed to be older. His view was, and it was right, that the S recension of the Rāmāyaṇa contained, on the whole, a more archaic text, though it was also inflated, and decided that it was more suitable for being adopted as the main text, omitting from it portions which were not supported by other recensions. I think the scholars will generally agree with the soundness of this principle. In my own case, I have adopted the S recension for my principal text, provided its contents are supported by NW, NE and W recensions. The result, in my opinion, enables me to reach a text, based on such agreement and difference, which is definitely the oldest. I may point out that although I have adopted S as my principal text, I did not hesitate to eliminate from it portion known as Ādityahṛdaya (App. I. No. 65) and portion relating to the stoppage of the Puṣpaka Vimāna, at the behest of Sītā, in the region of Kiṣkindhā, to collect the Vānara ladies and take them to Ayodhyā for witnessing the coronation of Rāma (vide App I. No. 72), because these events did not get corroboration from NW, NE or W recension. It is thus clear that these portions did not belong to the original and genuine core of the Rāmāyaṇa.

In the Mahābhārata as well as in the Rāmāyaṇa, Vyāsa and Vālmīki have used two principal metres, viz., the Anuṣṭubh and the Triṣṭubh-Jagati, the latter Indravajrā, Upendravajrā, Upajāti, Vaṁśastha, Aupacchandasika and their mixtures. These metres are capable of being easily handled by bards. The bards use a number of expressions to keep the versification correct or as flawless as possible. The Saṁhitās of the Epics and Purāṇas transmitted by these bards, were not, like the Vedas, Śabda-pradhāna, but arthapradhāna, and hence change of a word here and there did not matter much to the bard provided the contents of his narrative or the theme remained the same and versification smooth. The metres, as pointed out above, used in the epic, are easy to admit synonymous words of the same metrical quality. By way of illustration, I pick up a few such words: महातेजाः, महाराज-महाराजः, महाभाग-महाभागः, महाबाहुः-महाबाहो, महावीर्य-महावीर्यः, महासत्त्व-महासत्त्वः (all suited for the first half of Anuṣṭubh) and महातपाः, महाबल-महाबलः, महायशाः, महाद्युतिः-महाद्युते, महामतिः-महामते (suitable for the second half of Anuṣṭubh). The reader will meet hundreds of instances making use of these and similar expressions. I need not, therefore, emphasize the promiscuous use of such expressions in the Epics. Besides, there is a group of expressions which may be termed as verse-fillers, च, वै, तु, हि, ह, स्म; but the group is not restricted to these expletives; there are other expressions like राजन्, नृप-नृपः, वीर-वीरः, प्रभुः-विभुः, प्रभो-विभोः भद्रं ते, भारत, कौरव; जनेश्वर-जनेश्वरः, नरेश्वर-नरेश्वरः, नराधिप-नराधिपः, कुरुसत्तम, कुरुनन्दन, यदुनन्दन, यदुसत्तम, भरतर्षभ, क्षत्रियर्षभ for the Anuṣṭubh metre, and नरेन्द्रसूनो, नरेन्द्रपुत्र, जनेन्द्रसूनो, जनेन्द्रपुत्र for the Triṣṭubh metre. It should be noted that such verse-filling expressions could be expanded to the full length of a pāda, e.g. यशोदानन्दवर्धन-नः, कौसल्यानन्दवर्धन-नः, शतशोऽथ सहस्रशः. I have in view a set of some funny expressions like रावणस्य महात्मनः and राघवस्य महात्मनः used as verse-fillers where the word महात्मनः has to be used ironically in the case of Rāvaṇa and normally in the case of Rāma. When, therefore, varying traditions of bards reach the stage of writing, one tradition of MSS. uses one and the other its counterpart.

There are a few other devices which the bard has to resort to in his recitation. He cannot strictly follow the rules of grammar and syntax, because he is primarily to look to versification. He, therefore, uses Parasmaipada for Ātmanepada of verbs and vice versa; he drops augment a of the past tense; he uses nominative and accusative plural forms of feminine nouns promiscuously; he may not strictly observe rules of Saṁdhi and may even use expletives like च, तु, हि unnecessarily to avoid hiatus; he may even leave sentences incomplete; he may not use correctly active and passive constructions, and may commit the flaw of anacoluthon. These and other similar features of epic poetry go to prove that texts transmitted by oral tradition have a wide variation in their wording. This is the main reason why epics and purāṇas abound in various readings, transpositions of phrases and substitutions or parallel versions. The bards in their enthusiasm, particularly when their audience is appreciative or otherwise, go on expanding or shortening descriptions of events by filling in details which may happen to be omitted in other versions. The additional passages and episodes are not peculiar to any particular recension, but are found in all recensions and versions. The fluidity of readings of individual words, expressions, incidents, transpositions, all go to indicate that such oral traditions were more than one. I need not repeat that the traditional extent of the text of Yuddhakāṇḍa has only 5710 stanzas, while my constituted Critical Text contains only 4435 stanzas. The total number of star-passages included in the Critical Apparatus is over 3700 with more than 7000 lines or 3500 stanzas and that of passages relegated to App. I is 76 with 7335 lines, equal to 3668 stanzas.

The Rāmopākhyāna and the Rāmāyaṇa:

Before finishing my Introduction to the Yuddhakāṇḍa, the last Kāṇḍa of the real and original Rāmāyaṇa, I should like to refer to a point not touched by my predecessors. The point refers to the question of the relative chronology of the Rāmopākhyāna as found in the Mbh. 3.258–275 of the Critical Edition, and the Rāmāyaṇa in its Critical Edition, now before the reader for the first time. The Rāmopākhyāna in the Critical Edition contains 18 adhyāyas and 724 stanzas or 1448 lines. It narrates the story of Rāma upto his coronation only, i.e., upto the end of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa. The first three stanzas of the Rāmopākhyāna contain a sort of summary of the Ākhyāna, and run as follows:

प्राप्तमप्रतिमं दुःखं रामेण भरतर्षभ।
रक्षसा जानकी तस्य हृता भार्या बलीयसा॥
आश्रमाद्राक्षसेन्द्रेण रावणेन विहायसा।
मायामास्थाय तरसा हत्वा गृध्रं जटायुषम्॥
प्रत्याजहार तां रामः सुग्रीवबलमाश्रितः।
बद्ध्वा सेतुं समुद्रस्य दग्ध्वा लङ्कां शितैः शरैः॥

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

The story in the Mbh. is narrated by the sage Mārkaṇḍeya to Yudhiṣṭhira at a time when Draupadī was forcibly abducted by Jayadratha, and was recovered by Bhīma. When Yudhiṣṭhira asks Mārkaṇḍeya whether there was any unfortunate person like him who had lost his kingdom and wife, Mārkaṇḍeya narrates to him an old episode of Rāma who had lost both his kingdom and wife while he was, like him, in exile for a period of fourteen years. It thus appears that the narration of Rāmopākhyāna to Yudhiṣṭhira by the sage was quite appropriate to the occasion. There are no traces to suggest that the episode could be an interpolation in the Mbh. Being thus a genuine part of the Mahābhārata, it is much older than the poem of Vālmīki, and being a part of an Itihāsa, it is much more trustworthy than a Kāvya. Scholars from Weber and Jacobi down to the late Dr. Sukthankar have held different views about the relative antiquity of the Rāmopākhyāna and the Rāmāyaṇa, some holding that the former is an abridgement of the Rāmāyaṇa and consequently later than the Rāmāyaṇa. The question, therefore, of the relative chronology requires a fresh examination so as to settle it finally. My own considered view is that the Rāmopākhyāna is centuries older than the Rāmāyaṇa and being a part of the Itihāsa has stated the facts, while the Rāmāyaṇa being a Kāvya is much later than the Rāmopākhyāna, and has enlarged, modified and embellished the narrative as it occurs in the Rāmopākhyāna. It must be borne in mind that an abridgement of a work is more faithful to its original than an enlargement of the same. I note below a few interesting points which are peculiar to the Rāmopākhyāna, but not referred to or differently referred to in the Rāmāyaṇa. I shall also point out the elements in the Rāmakathā which are innovations of Vālmīki, so that the reader might solve the question for himself.

1. The Rāmopākhyāna makes no mention of Viśvāmitra, who, according to Bālakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa, took away young Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and gave them training in missiles; the marriage of Sītā with Rāma did not take place in the presence of Viśvāmitra, but was arranged by Tvaṣṭṛ. In the Rāmāyaṇa, on the other hand, Viśvāmitra took young Rāma and Lakṣmana, trained them in missiles, took them to Janaka's court, where after breaking of Śiva's bow, Rāma was married to Sītā. It is thus clear that the entire episode of Viśvāmitra was an innovation of the poet Vālmīki and introduced by him in the older and similar Rāmopākhyāna.

2. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to the episode of Ahalyā and her restoration to life at the touch of Rāma's feet. This episode also in the Rāmāyaṇa is an innovation of Vālmīki.

3. The Rāmopākhyāna mentions three times an old Rākṣasa minister of Rāvaṇa, Avindhya by name, who is well-disposed towards Rāma. He once consoles Sītā by giving her news about the well-being of Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa and assuring her that they would soon release her from detention in Rāvaṇa's custody; second time he prevents Rāvaṇa from killing Sītā by pointing to him that a crowned king like Rāvaṇa should not kill a woman, already in imprisonment; and third time, he brought Sītā to Rāma after Rāvaṇa's death. Rāma is said to have rewarded him for his good offices after his coronation for the part he played in the recovery of Sītā. Trijaṭā is mentioned in both the Rāmopākhyāna and the Rāmāyaṇa. Avindhya is thus ignored in the Rāmāyaṇa as Vālmīki thought him to be not so important.

4. In Rāmopākhyāna, Kumbhakarṇa is killed by Lakṣmaṇa (Mbh. 3.271.11–12), while in the Rāmāyaṇa he is killed by Rāma (R. 6.55).

5. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to Hanumat bringing the mount Droṇācala with its medicinal plants to revive Lakṣmaṇa hit by Indrajit's missile. The revival of Lakṣmaṇa was effected in the Rāmopākhyāna by Sugrīva with the help of plants available near at hand. The entire incident of Droṇācala and its medicinal plants is an innovation introduced by Vālmīki.

6. In the Rāmopākhyāna, Kubera sends magic water to Rāma to enable him to see invisible demons and other objects. Vālmīki does not mention the item of magic water at all.

7. In the Rāmopākhyāna, Avindhya brings Sītā to Rāma's camp after Rāvaṇa was killed. In the Rāmāyaṇa, Rāma sends Hanumat for bringing Sītā to him from Rāvaṇa's palace. When she is brought to Rāma's presence, Rāma tells her that she is free to go anywhere. The repudiation of Sītā is couched in similar fashion in both works.

8. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to Sītā proving her chastity by entering into fire. This ordeal of Sītā by throwing hereself into fire is a pure innovation of Vālmīki. In the Rāmopākhyāna it is stated that after hearing the words of her repudiation by Rāma in terms:

सुवृत्तामसुवृत्तां वाप्यहं त्वामद्य मैथिलि ।
नोत्सहे परिभोगाय श्वावलीढं हविर्यथा ॥
Mbh. 3.275.13

On hearing these words, Sītā fell down fainted, Lakṣmaṇa and monkeys were struck dumb, when god Brahmā, followed by several gods like Indra, Agni, Vāyu, Kubera, the seven sages and Daśaratha, appears on the scene. Then Sītā got up and said to Rāma:

राजपुत्र न ते कोपं करोमि विदिता हि मे ।
गतिः स्त्रीणां नराणां च शृणु चेदं वचो मम ॥
अन्तश्चरति भूतानां मातरिश्वा सदागतिः ।
स मे विमुञ्चतु प्राणान्यदि पापं चराम्यहम् ॥
Mbh. 3. 275. 22–23

Upon this utterance, it is Vāyu,—I ask the reader to note that it was not Agni as in the Rāmāyaṇa—who said:

भो भो राघव सत्यं वै वायुरस्मि सदागतिः ।
अपापा मैथिली राजन्संगच्छ सह भार्यया ॥
Mbh. 3. 275.26

After Vāyu, other gods present such as Agni, Varuṇa, Brahmā, all said in one voice:

नात्र शङ्का त्वया कार्या प्रतीच्छेमां महाद्युते ।
Mbh. 3. 275. 34

Then Daśaratha also tells Rāma to go to Ayodhyā with Sītā to take charge of his kingdom. Rāma then agreed, accepted Sītā and went to Ayodhyā in the Puṣpaka Vimāna.

I have given above the account as to how Sītā proved her chastity according to the Rāmopākhyāna. Now I ask the reader to compare the above account and contrast it with that in the Rāmāyaṇa found in Sargas 101–106 of the Yuddhakāṇḍa in the Critical Edition. According to the Rāmāyaṇa, it is Rāma who asks Hanumat to go to Rāvaṇa's palace and inform Sītā that Rāma had killed Rāvaṇa, and Vibhīṣaṇa is put on the throne of Laṅkā. Sītā then told Hanumat that she would like to see Rāma. Rāma then asked Vibhīṣaṇa to bring Sītā to him bathed and decked. She was brought to Rāma in a palanquin. When she approached Rāma, he was filled with joy—because he won the victory over Rāvaṇa, depression—because Rāvaṇa insulted him by Sītā's abduction, and anger—because Sītā might not have remained chaste in Rāvaṇa's house. When Sītā approached Rāma and addressed him with the usual term Āryaputra, Rāma said to her:

यत्कर्तव्यं मनुष्येण धर्षणां परिमार्जता ।
तत्कृतं सकलं सीते शत्रुहस्तादमर्षणात् ॥ R. 6. 103. 13
विदितश्चास्तु भद्रं ते योऽयं रणपरिश्रमः ।
स तीर्णः सुहृदां वीर्यान्न त्वदर्थं मया कृतः ॥

एता दश दिशो भद्रे कार्यमस्ति न मे त्वया ॥
R. 6. 103. 15–18

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

On hearing this repudiation by Rāma, Sītā told him that he was doing injustice to her and argued :

त्वया तु नरशार्दूल क्रोधमेवानुवर्तता ।
लघुनेव मनुष्येण स्त्रीत्वमेव पुरस्कृतम् ॥
अपदेशेन जनकान्नोत्पत्तिर्वसुधातलात् ।
मम वृत्तं च वृत्तज्ञ बहु ते न पुरस्कृतम् ॥
न प्रमाणीकृतः पाणिर्बाल्ये बालेन पीडितः ।
मम भक्तिश्च शीलं च सर्वं ते पृष्ठतः कृतम् ॥

R. 6. 104. 14–16

So saying, Sītā made up her mind to end her life by entering into burning fire in the presence of Rāma and other members of the gathering, and told Lakṣmaṇa :

चितां मे कुरु सौमित्रे व्यसनस्यास्य भेषजम् ।
मिथ्यापवादोपहता नाहं जीवितुमुत्सहे ॥
अप्रीतस्य गुणैर्भर्तुस्त्यक्तया जनसंसदि ।
या क्षमा मे गतिर्गन्तुं प्रवेक्ष्ये हव्यवाहनम् ॥

R. 6. 104. 18–19

Lakṣmaṇa then looked up to Rāma, and gathering from his face his consent to the proposal of Sītā, he prepared a burning pile. Sītā approached the pile and said :

यथा मे हृदयं नित्यं नापसर्पति राघवात् ।
तथा लोकस्य साक्षी मां सर्वतः पातु पावकः ॥

R. 6. 104. 24

So saying, Sītā approached the fire regardless of her life. Then all gods appeared on the scene and appealed to Rāma not to be so indifferent to Sītā who was throwing herself into the fire. The gods also pointed to Rāma that he was the lord of all gods, Viṣṇu incarnate. Rāma thereupon told gods that had gathered that he considered himself to be a human being, the son of Daśaratha :

आत्मानं मानुषं मन्ये रामं दशरथात्मजम् ।

R. 6. 105.10

Just at this juncture the god of fire in person jumped up from the burning pile with Sītā on his lap, gave her to Rāma and said :

विशुद्धभावां निष्पापां प्रतिगृह्णीष्व राघव ।
न किंचिदभिधातव्यमहमाज्ञापयामि ते ॥

R. 6. 106. 9

To this Rāma responded :

अवश्यं त्रिषु लोकेषु सीता पावनमर्हति ।
दीर्घकालोषिता चेयं रावणान्तःपुरे शुभा ॥
बालिशः खलु कामात्मा रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
इति वक्ष्यन्ति मां सन्तो जानकीमविशोध्य हि ॥
अनन्यहृदयां भक्तां मच्चित्तपरिरक्षिणीम् ।
अहमप्यवगच्छामि मैथिलीं जनकात्मजाम् ॥
प्रत्ययार्थं तु लोकानां त्रयाणां सत्यसंश्रयः ।
उपेक्षे चापि वैदेहीं प्रविशन्तीं हुताशनम् ॥

R. 6. 106. 11–14

It is now clear from the above narration that Vālmīki introduced this episode of Sītā's purification by fire against the narration in the Rāmopākhyāna where Vāyu is said to be the first to announce the purity of Sītā. Whether Sītā actually threw herself into the fire, or was approaching (प्रविशन्तीं) the burning fire when personified Agni caught her and brought her to Rāma, is still a moot question, because once we get the text to say प्रविवेश हुताशनम् and next उपेक्षे चापि वैदेहीं प्रविशन्तीं हुताशनम्. In any case, the poet Vālmīki introduced in his epic poem an innovation of Sītā's test by fire against the epic and historical background of Vāyu assuring Rāma of Sītā's purity. This innovation, among others, is thus the most striking innovation made by Vālmīki when he decided to handle an old epic theme and gave it the shape of a poem, the first of its kind, an Ādikāvya. We are not so much interested in the fact whether Sītā threw herself into the fire, came out unhurt, and was presented to Rāma by fire-god, because we believe that Vāyu appearing on the scene and declaring Sītā's purity, and Agni bringing Sītā to Rāma and presenting her to him unhurt or brighter are facts equally super-natural to us. We are, therefore, concerned more with changes or innovations introduced by the poet Vālmīki in his poem against a historical statement made in the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata.

The above story of Rāma as found in the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata, traditionally known as the Itihāsa, and the same in Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa, traditionally known as Ādikāvya, the first poem, deserves some further general considerations. Itihāsa and Purāṇas in Indian literature and poems like Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa are all mixed up with historical grains and myths. The Rāmopākhyāna which is a part and parcel of a work called Itihāsa, requires Vāyu personified to announce the purity and chastity of Sītā. Vālmīki, however, shows greater height of imagination in putting Vāyu in the background and invent the fire-ordeal to prove Sītā's purity, because fire is visible while Vāyu is invisible. The incident as narrated in the Itihāsa looks insipid against the fire-ordeal which can catch the public mind more quickly. Has not thus Vālmīki modified the statement made in the Itihāsa to make his poem more impressive than the insipid record in Itihāsa? In this context, I may bring to the reader's notice a recent article in Marathi by Mm. Dr. V. V. MIRASHI which appeared in the Journal Nava Bharata for July 1970 (the original article in English by him may soon appear in some research journal) in which Dr. MIRASHI studies the question of the episode known as Pārijātaharaṇa as it figures in the Critical Text of Harivaṁśa and as modified by a poet of a later date, king Sarvasena (A.D. 330-355) of the Vākāṭaka dynasty. The oldest form of the episode of Pārijātaharaṇa is found in the Mbh. 7.10.22-23 and runs as follows:

वैनतेयं समारुह्य त्रासयित्वामरावतीम् ।
महेन्द्रभवनाद्वीरः पारिजातमुपानयत् ॥
तच्च मर्षितवाञ्शक्रो जानंस्तस्य पराक्रमम् ।
राज्ञां चाप्यजितं कंचित्कृष्णेनेह न शुश्रुम ॥

This very episode figures in Harivaṁśa (92. 63–67) in its Critical Edition as follows:

स ददर्श महाबाहुराक्रीडे वासवस्य ह ।
दिव्यमभ्यर्चितं देवैः पारिजातं महाद्रुमम् ॥
उत्पाट्यारोपयामास विष्णुस्तं गरुडोपरि ।
सोऽपश्यत्सत्यभामा च दिव्यमप्सरसां गणम् ॥
.....
श्रुत्वा तं देवराजस्तु कर्म कृष्णस्य तत्तदा ।
अनुमेने महाबाहुः कृतकर्मेति चाब्रवीत् ॥

The same episode figures in Kṣemendra's Bhārata Mañjarī as follows:

तं दृष्ट्वा नयनानन्दबान्धवं माधवः स्वयम् ।
समुत्पाट्य जहाराशु तच्चामन्यत वृत्रहा ॥

Now this plain story of Pārijātaharaṇa assumes altogether a different form in king Sarvasena's Prakrit poem Harivijaya (A.D. 330-355) where the element of jealousy between Rukmiṇī and Satyabhāmā is introduced for the first time as well as a full-fledged battle between Indra and Kṛṣṇa over this tree. Here also a historical statement in the Harivaṁśa is given a new twist. Ānandavardhana in his Dhvanyāloka III has noted this fact in the following form:

इतिवृत्तवशायातां कथंचिद्रसानुगुणां स्थितिं त्यक्त्वा पुनरुत्प्रेक्ष्य अभीष्टरसोचितकथोन्नयो विधेयः यथा कालिदासप्रबन्धेषु यथा च सर्वसेनविरचिते हरिविजये ।

CC-0. Nanaji Deshmukh Library, BJP, Jammu. Digitized by eGangotri

On the above passage Abhinavagupta in Locana remarks:

हरिविजये कान्तानुनयाङ्गत्वेन पारिजातहरणं निरूपितम् इतिहासेष्वदृष्टमपि।

It is thus clear that king Sarvasena, the author of the Prakrit poem (now lost or not yet traced) narrated the story of Pārijātaharaṇa as subordinate to his appeasing Satyabhāmā who was jealous of Rukmiṇī whom Kṛṣṇa gave the pārijāta flower, though there is no reference to such an event in the Itibāsa, i.e. Mahābhārata. This clue has, since the days of king Sarvasena, been utilized by over a dozen poets in Sanskrit literature down to 17th century. Our poet Vālmīki has done a similar thing in his epic poem Rāmāyaṇa, even though he took the main story of Rāma from the Itihāsa, i.e. the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata.

We have not yet studied the question how myths in literature grow. Vālmīki picked the main theme of the Rāmāyaṇa for his epic poem from the Mahābhārata, and gave a new turn by introducing new features like Viśvāmītra episode, the bringing of Droṇācala by Hanumat, and the fire-ordeal of Sītā, following the dictum कुर्यान्निर्वहणेऽद्भुतम् i.e., the poet should introduce supernatural elements towards the concluding part of his poem or play. The coming out of Sītā from the burning fire is that miraculous event now perpetuated in Indian literature.

I may briefly point out here that like the fire-ordeal of the Rāmāyaṇa and assuaging the jealousy of co-wives as in the Pārijātaharaṇa, there are several such episodes like the story of Syamantaka gem which Prasena discovered on the foreshore at a time when Dvārakā was founded. This discovery of Syamantaka, in another later version, was said to be a present to Prasena by the sun-god. This gem has gathered several myths around it including that of not looking at the moon on the fourth day of Bhādrapada, though the Critical Text of Harivaṁśa makes no reference to it and narrates the simple fact that Prasena discovered the gem on the fore-shore of Dvārakā. The narration of the life of Kṛṣṇa in Harivaṁśa is already full of a number of myths, but it is to be noted that these myths are amplified in the Bhāgavata Purāṇa and Bramavaivarta Purāṇa.

I have already digressed from my main point, viz., Vālmīki introduced for the first time the episode of Sītā's fire-ordeal in his poem Rāmāyaṇa, though the older narrative makes no reference to it. Sītā on that account rose in estimation of popular mind as having undergone through the most miraculous form of expiation for her stay in Rāvaṇa's house. This is the greatest feat and height of imagination of the poetic genius of Vālmīki.

I should not close this Introduction of the Yuddhakāṇḍa without recording my grateful and sincere thanks to those persons who entrusted this work to me and who actively helped me in my editorial task from beginning to end during a long period of nine years. In fact, I feel very much over-whelmed by their kindness when on conclusion of my labour I find how my role has been insignificant compared with an enormous quantity of quality labour these persons bestowed upon the production of this volume of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. It is obviously difficult for me to mention all names, but I am all along conscious of their kind help to me.

I should like to record, in the first place, my grateful thanks to Dr. Shrimati Hansaben Mehta, the first Vice-Chancellor of the Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda as Chairman of the Editorial Board, for the project of the Critical Edition of the Rāmāyaṇa, who, without any acquaintance, accepted my name first for the membership of the Board and then for the editorship of two of the bigger Kāṇḍas of the Rāmāyaṇa, viz., the Ayodhyākāṇḍa and the Yuddhakāṇḍa, on the recommendation of my friend, the late Professor Govindalal H. BHATT, the first General Editor of this project. After the sad and rather untimely demise of Professor BHATT, his successor, Dr. U. P. SHAH, has also been equally kind to me, and advised me and sought my advice in all my and his difficulties in the editorial task. My heartful thanks go to Dr. U. P. SHAH. For the preparation of the constituted text of the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, I spent days and months at Baroda, but for the Yuddhakāṇḍa, I could not do so, on account of my other assignment, viz., the General Editorship of the Mahābhārata at the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona. The late Professor BHATT then arranged, with the consent of his authorities, to send the collation-sheets to Poona to suit my convenience. The work of consituting the text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa was thus done in my spare time and completed in December 1964 and it may be out by March 1971. During this process of editorial task and printing, difficulties arose which had to be settled by correspondence. Dr. U. P. SHAH'S help to me in this regard is great and valuable, and I must record my special thanks to him for his untiring energy. Dr. U. P. SHAH was ably assisted by Shri M. R. NAMBIYAR, the Assistant Editor, by Shri H. T. DESAI for sometime as well as by messrs Dr. B. N. BHATT, NIRGUDKAR and others. Obviously, I must say once more, that the Critical Edition of a text like the Rāmāyaṇa is not the work of an individual but of a team, and the successful completion of it depends upon the staff, prepared to give its best to the General Editor. I consider myself lucky in having a staff which rendered my work easy and light. I, therefore, like to record my grateful thanks to them individually and collectively. Lastly, I must not miss to record my best thanks to the staff of the University Press who have spared no pains to make the printing of this volume excellent in their usual way. Finally, I cannot close this Introduction without recording my humble gratitude to God Almighty who spared me to my eightieth year to complete this job.

ॐ तत्सत्। ब्रह्मार्पणमस्तु।

☞ In Ś1 Ñ V1 B D3.8.9.12, Sargas 1–15 form part of the Sundarakāṇḍa. In these MSS. the Yuddhakāṇḍa begins with Sarga 16.

In V2, Sargas 1–15 are not found. The MS. begins with Sarga 16.

V3 is a new MS. wherein Sargas 1–15 are not found. The variants recorded as of V3 for Sargas 1–15 are from a different MS. (viz. V2 of the Sundara) in which the Sundarakāṇḍa incorporates these fifteen Sargas and then comes to an end.

For Sargas 1–15, B2 and B4 are the same as B3 and B4 respy. of the Sundara. However, from Sarga 16 onwards B2 and B4 are different MSS.

In D1 and D4, Sargas 1–31 belong to the Sundarakāṇḍa. As such, D4 begins the Yuddhakāṇḍa with Sarga 32. But in D1, the Yuddhakāṇḍa begins with Sarga 16 (and not with Sarga 32). Consequently Sargas 16–31 are duplicated in it (vide note in Sarga 16).

In D2, the Yuddhakāṇḍa begins with Sarga 6 as Sargas 1–5 therein belong to the Sundara.

D5 begins with श्रीगणेशाय नमः। हरिः ॐ।

D6 begins with श्रीमते रामानुजाय नमः and then ins. some introductory stanzas beginning with स जयति रघुवंशतिलकः कौशल्याहृदयनंदनो रामः etc.

D7 begins with ॐ.

D9 begins with केषुचित्पुस्तकेषु श्रुत्वा हनुमतो वाक्यमिदमारभ्य युद्धकांडारंभ उच्यते.

D10 begins with युद्धकाण्डविधिपत्रे ४। श्रीगणेशाय नमः। and then ins. the पारायणविधि of the Yuddhakāṇḍa.

D11 begins with श्रीरघुवीरो जयति.

T1 begins with श्रीरामाय नमः। हरिः ॐ; T2 with श्रीगुरुभ्यो नमः; T3 with श्रीहयग्रीवाय नमः। अविघ्नमस्तु शुभमस्तु युद्धकाण्ड।

G1 begins with हरिः ॐ शुभमस्तु युद्धकाण्डं; G2 with युद्धकाण्डं; G3 with ॐ। हरिः ॐ शुभमस्तु। श्रीगुरुभ्यो नमः। युद्धकाण्डं।
